What is Process modelling with BPMN

BPMN stands for Business Process Modeling Notation, the new standard for modeling and communication of business processes. The goal of BPMN is to provide an accessible and understandable notation for business analysts, process designers, process managers and users from the business, who monitor the process and control (source: OMG). In addition, BPMN models are used to generate complementary technology, automatic code-BPEL (Business Process Execution Language) in order to carry out the process. BPMN is the first standard that makes this link possible. In this training you will learn to understand the structure and the notation and use BPMN in practice.
