What is Presenting professionally - Fundamentals

As a professional you deliver presentations regularly: for your own team, for your client or for management. Sometimes it is a simple update about the work you are doing, other times you need to inform or convince the group of your idea or solution. In all cases, it's about getting your message across. But how do you take care of that?

In the training "Present Professionally" you practice extensively with delivering different types of presentations. How do you come across as a person? How do you deal with stress? How can you use your voice and (facial) expressions effectively? We discuss what you should pay attention to during a presentation. Not just during the presentation, also during the preparation and the choice of tools you can use. In this training, the focus is on presentations for a small to medium-sized audience, about 3 to 15 people.

Please note: on day 2 you have to deliver a pre-prepared presentation. Keep in mind that you need to prepare this between days 1 and 2.

Who should attend Presenting professionally - Fundamentals

Professionals who want to present themselves or their expertise to a small audience: colleagues, clients or management.

Prerequisites

If you also want to follow Pyramid Principle or Storytelling, we advise you to follow these training courses first.

Objectives

Afterwards, the participant has extra tools for successfully presenting his message and he has gained (extra) experience with the presentation itself.
